IV. Voices

Mr. Flavio Marabelli, President of Confindustria Marmomacchine

Our members here all have had quite good performance; they met many new clients, from project design sector in particular. Our Italian companies know well STONETECH is a must-stop for our project and end products business. We're expecting the coming of STONETECH 2011 in Beijing, because we are really keen to see the urban expansion in Beijing and other north China cities.

Mr. Du, Chairman of Wuhan Keda Marble Protective Materials Co., Ltd.

We met with a large number of clients at the exhibition, including dealers of stone protective materials and even many foreign clients; not only our old patrons came to us, but many new faces told us their business intent. We have a load of work to do after the show.

Mr. Li, Manager of Guangdong BODE Fine Building Material Co., Ltd.

The biggest impression is, we met lots of clients, especially from the sector of real estate. Now BODE is entering the cooperation stage with many famous developers, to try the market of Decoration. STONETECH is such kind of place where we could find our best end-users, and that's simply why we were there.

Mr. Li, International Representative of MAXSTONE INTERNATIONAL.LLC

We gained a lot! I have already sent the purchasing selection to USA headquarter, and orders will come out next month.

Mr. YABASHI TATSURO, President of Japan SekiStone Company

Japanese enterprises set a high threshold for product quality, for which few sellers are able to win their orders. However, the Japanese got a good response from many companies at this year's STONETECH. I'm confident to organize more buyers to participate STONETECH 2011 in Beijing.
